Yesterday's modest gains took us to a high of 13.1803, but we closed back down at 13.1294. This morning is seeing much of the same behavior, as we have once again traded to 13.1803 and pulled back from here. What we're really after (as we said yesterday) is a weekly close above 12.9792, as this will add weight to our argument that we'll see further gains from here in the long term. Our short term target is still at 13.6838, and is the high from 14th October last year. Above here in the longer term, we're now gunning for 13.4662 and 13.6085. The first is the 50% Fibonacci Retracement of the losses seen since November 2007 and the second is an old low from September 2008.

Indicators in play.

Trendlines are probably the most basic and easy to understand tools in Technical Analysis. It's just a matter of joining higher lows together with two and some prefer three points of contact. The more dips that touch the line and the longer the support has been in play increases the potency of this type of trading tool.

Summary

In the short term we're more than happy to remain in the Bulls camp especially whilst we're above 12.8696 and then 13.0396. These are both Marabuzo line on the daily chart. Long term we're also now Bullish, targeting 13.4662 and 13.6085. Our stop will be below 12.7602. We'll tighten this up, once things get going on the upside.
